Turning ideas into practical solutions.

The ERICA is truly unique beca the presentation of the award is culmination of the program, but rather, the beginning of it. Once the award is given, the w begins on taking the winners ic and turning them into functiona Internet solutions that help real people with real problems. My suggestion is - Enter here and Short summary:

- The competition is open to all charitable not-for-profit organizations (U.S. 501(c) (3) or equivalent).
- Participants must describe a project in which Internet technology is used by the non-profit organization to communicate its message, deliver its services, strengthen infrastructure or otherwise achieve its goals and objectives.
- ~~All e-mail entries must be submitted by 12:00 Midnight (Greenwich Standard Time), Wednesday, March 31, 1999.~~
- The top 20 finalists will be selected by the ERICA Non-Profit Advisory Council, and published on the ERICA website not later than April 26, 1999.
- The combined value of the prize is $250,000 (U.S.), including $100,000 (U.S) donated by Ericsson and $150,000 (U.S) in services donated by leading web developer companies.

1. Scope of Internet Projects.

Participants must describe a project in which Internet technology is used by the non-profit organization to communicate its message, deliver its services, strengthen infrastructure or otherwise achieve its goals and objectives. Projects may help organizations gain visibility or provide basic operational enhancements and improvements. Organizations may also submit entries that boost development efforts and fund raising, or recruit volunteer and mission supporters. Submissions may also address communications with suppliers, supporters or staff. Each participant warrants and represents that it is the sole owner of or has license to use its Internet Project. Participants shall indemnify and hold Ericsson and its agents harmless against any cost, claims or demands arising out of or in connection with any claim that the Participant's Internet Project infringes the patent, copyright or any other Intellectual Property Rights of a third party.

2. Who may enter.

The competition is open to all charitable not-for-profit organizations (U.S. 501(c) (3) or equivalent). The representative(s) of the organization who will have responsibility for design, development and maintenance of the Internet project must make entries. Any entity controlled directly or indirectly by, or employees of, Telefonaktiebolaget LM Ericsson, will not be allowed to participate. Employees of Edelman Public Relations Worldwide and Brand International will not participate. Participants selected as finalists must provide evidence of their non-profit status upon request and Edelman and its advisors reserve the right to make final determination of eligibility and to disqualify entrants whose purpose they deem to be unethical. Project leaders under the age of 18 must have approval of their parent or guardian.

3. How to enter.

The competition instructions and Entry form can be accessed via the ERICA web site. Complete competition instructions and printed entry forms also can be obtained by writing to ERICA, c/o Edelman Public Relations Worldwide, 1200 Brickell Avenue, Suite 1270, Miami, Florida, 33131, USA. Participants must complete all data requested on the entry form. Incomplete Entry forms are void. Entries must be submitted by a representative(s) of the Participant duly authorized by it to submit the Entry for the purpose of competition in accordance with the competition rules. A Participant may submit only one Entry. Any Entry submitted by the same Participant after its first submitted Entry is void for the purposes of the competition. Entries must be submitted in English. By submitting an Entry, participants acknowledge compliance with competition rules, including eligibility requirements. There is no Entry fee.

4. Entry deadline.

Entries may be completed and submitted by e-mail to the ERICA Web site beginning at 12:01 pm (Greenwich Standard Time), Monday, January 11, 1999. All e-mail entries must be submitted by 12:00 Midnight (Greenwich Standard Time) Wednesday, March 31, 1999. No entries submitted by mail will be accepted at the ERICA Web site after that date. Written (non-electronic) submissions must be postmarked later than March 31, 1999.

5. Use of entries.

By entering this competition, each Participant acknowledges and accepts that the information on the Entry form will be made publicly available on the ERICA Web site (www.ericsson.com/erica) and disclosed to the ERICA Profit Advisory Council, ERICA Web Development Panel and ERICA Judges. In entering, participants also grant Ericsson the right, free of any charges, to use, display, reproduce, publish and distribute any information in the forms (including the name and address of the participant) in other Ericsson promotion contexts such as press releases, brochures, videos and exhibitions and in/on such media as Ericsson (and its affiliates and representatives) in its sole discretion may elect.

6. Selection process.

The top 20 finalists will be selected by the ERICA Non-Profit Advisory Council. The names of the Top 20 finalists will be published on the ERICA Web site not later than April 15, 1999. The ERICA Judges will review the Top 20 submissions in April and May, 1999 and determine the winning Entries. In selecting the Award winners, the ERICA Judges will consider how well the Internet Project described in the submission addresses the organization's needs as well as the Project's creativity, demonstrability and practicality (see selection criteria). Ericsson will notify prize recipients by e-mail and phone by May 17, 1999. The winners will be announced at an event sponsored by Ericsson's CyberLab in New York City in June 1999 and will have their entries displayed at the site. The decisions of the ERICA Non-Profit Advisory Council and ERICA Judges are final and binding. In the event of two or more identical entries, the entry with the earliest submission date and time will receive the award.

7. Prizes.

The combined value of the prize is $250,000 (U.S.), including $100,000 (U.S.), donated by Ericsson and $150,000 (U.S.) in services donated by leading web development companies. The services will be used to design, develop and implement from the five Internet projects. The ERICA judges will determine the exact number of awards and the level of funding for each project. The cash contribution will be used to offset services not donated by web developers. Any tax on the prize is the responsibility of the winner. Ericsson CyberLab will supervise design, development and implementation of projects. All funded projects will be entered in the public domain. Winning projects will receive an ERICA-symbol and a specific URL for linking the symbol to the ERICA site

8. Limits of liability.

Participants are solely responsible for the accuracy of contents of their Entries. Neither Ericsson nor its affiliates and representatives are responsible for incorrect, incomplete or late-arriving Entry forms. Ericsson accepts no responsibility for loss or damages to Entrants, arising but not limited to, technical malfunctions of any telephony network, computer equipment, software or any combination thereof, entry materials that have been tampered with or error, lost, delayed or garbled data transmission, or prize claims that are late, lost, damaged, postage due or misdirected. Additionally, if Ericsson determines in its discretion that there is any suspected or actual electronic tampering with the competition or if technical difficulties (including, but not limited to, computer viruses or bugs) compromise the administration or integrity of the competition, Ericsson reserves the right to void the entries at issue without liability. Any disputes arising in relation to the competition and the terms and conditions and all other matters relating to the competition shall be governed by the Laws of Sweden and the Court of Sweden shall have exclusive jurisdiction.
