Dear Lois:

Since we met in Regina I have become a free lance writer. The WCIP and I are continuing our association, but there is no money to pay me. For your reading enjoyment, I have enclosed a copy of my most recent opus. Perhaps this article will give you a clearer understanding of my ramblings at the lunch counter in Regina.

Your suggestion that the "new International Political Order" has some possibilities has caused me to take the dive and begin writing a book. My working title is: Ancient Peoples and Modern Times. Based on articles and essays I have written during the last five years (and the enclosed "Bank" piece) I intend to describe how indigenous populations are helping to reshape the international political and economic landscape. If you have any parts of my interview with you in taped or transcribed form, I would appreciate receiving a copy.

I am looking for a possible publisher (anywhere!) for the book. I am, of course, looking for outlets to print my articles. Have any suggestions?

Are you interested in working on a joint piece? If so, let me know. I like some of your ideas. Maybe, we could even find a sponsor!

I've misplaced your home address and telephone number. Could you give it to me again?

Regards,

RUDOLPH C. RYSER
