

Chap 12 Close Shave

Arrival in Sandinista Managua. Tomás Borge said the Yatama negotiation delegation would be arrested upon arrival. Left to right: advisor Jim Anaya, Brooklyn Rivera, Rama leader Walter Ortiz, and advisor Glenn Morris. January, 1988, Managua. Photo by Bernard Nietschmann. [Chap. 12]

Sandinista State Security (DGSE). The DGSE focused considerable attention on the Yatama delegation during its February-March, 1988 trip to Nicaragua and Yapti Tasba. The Yatama delegation was followed, bugged, and dogged by Sandinista infiltrators. March, 1988, Pearl Lagoon. Photo by Bernard Nietschmann. [Chap. 12]

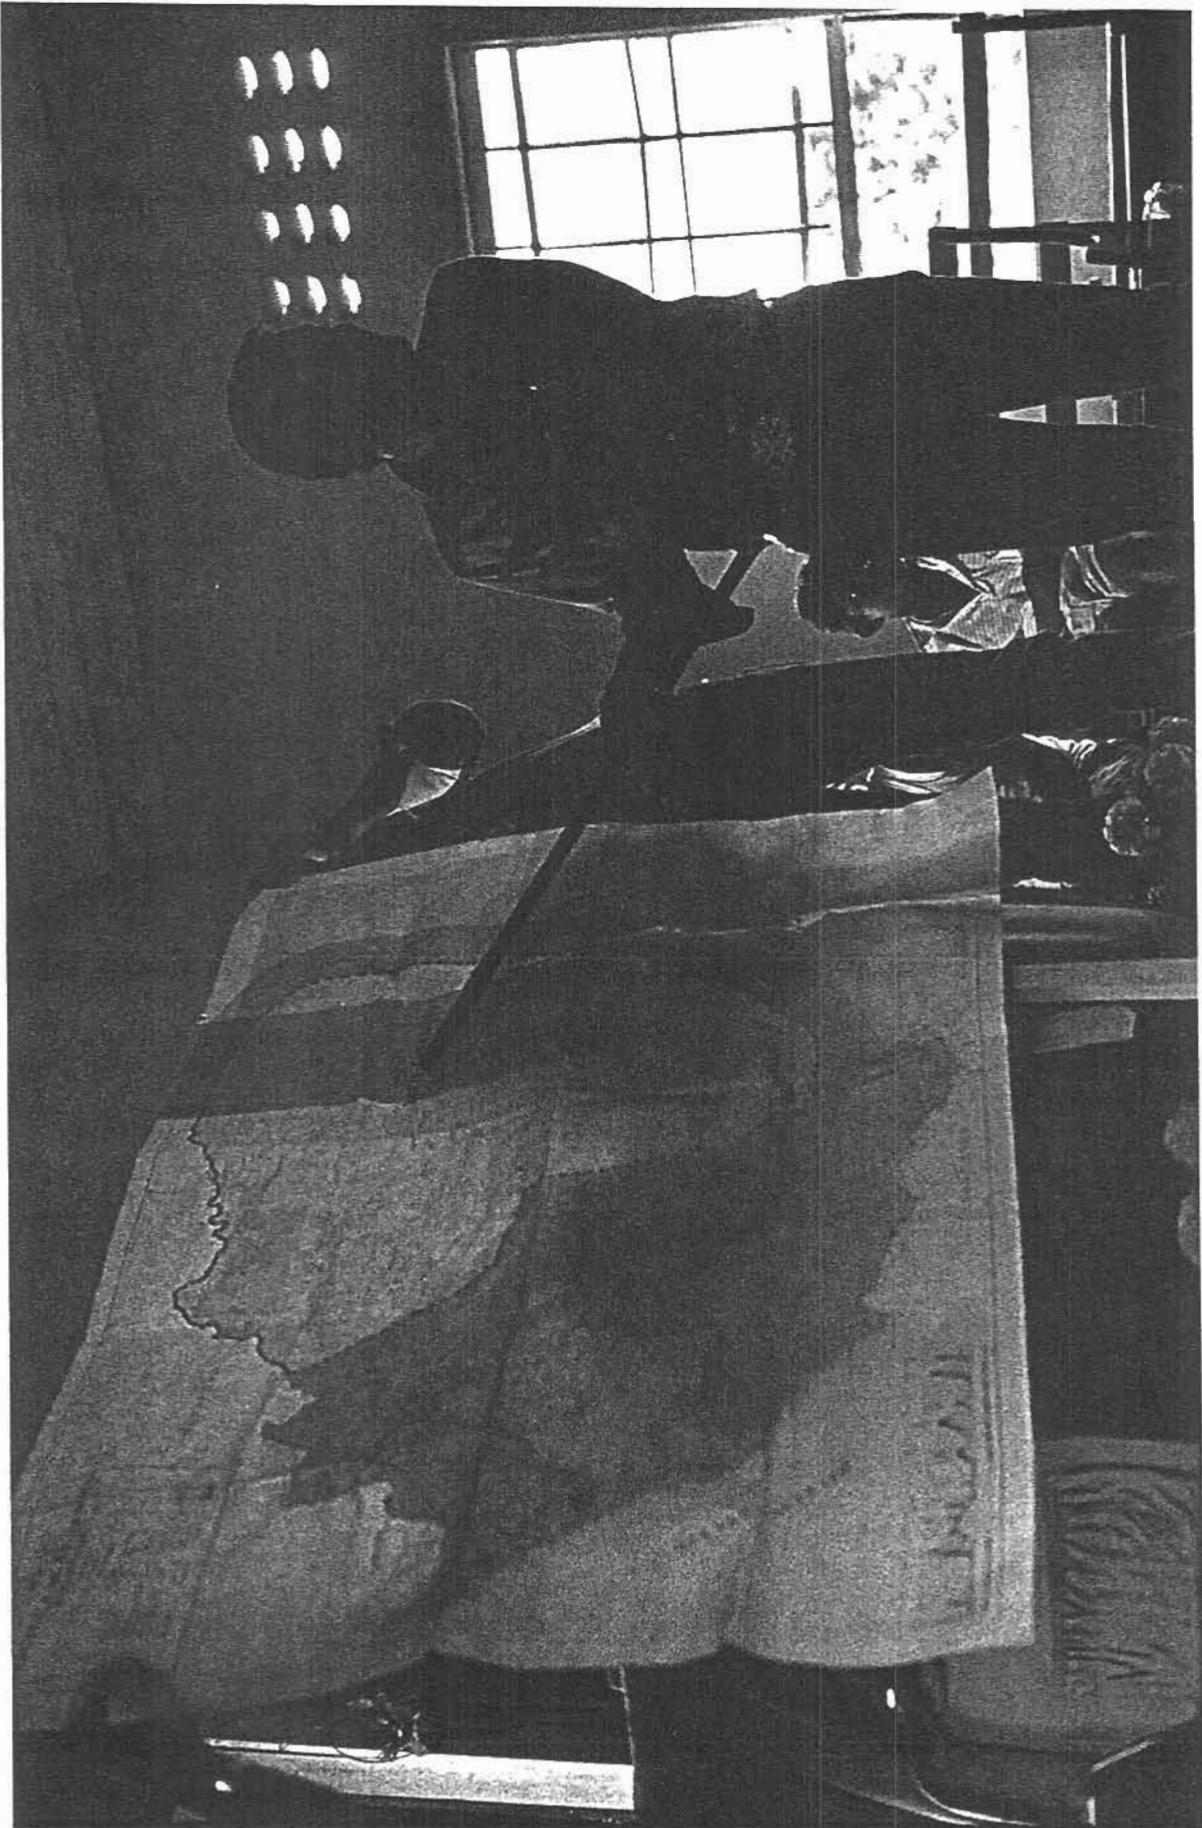

A brother tells of Junior Rubin Mitchell's torture and murder by Sandinista State Security officer "Melward". Little Sandy Bay community people volunteered a long list of atrocities and violations committed by local DGSE personnel. Little Sandy Bay, March 5, 1988. Photo by Bernard Nietschmann. [Chap. 12]

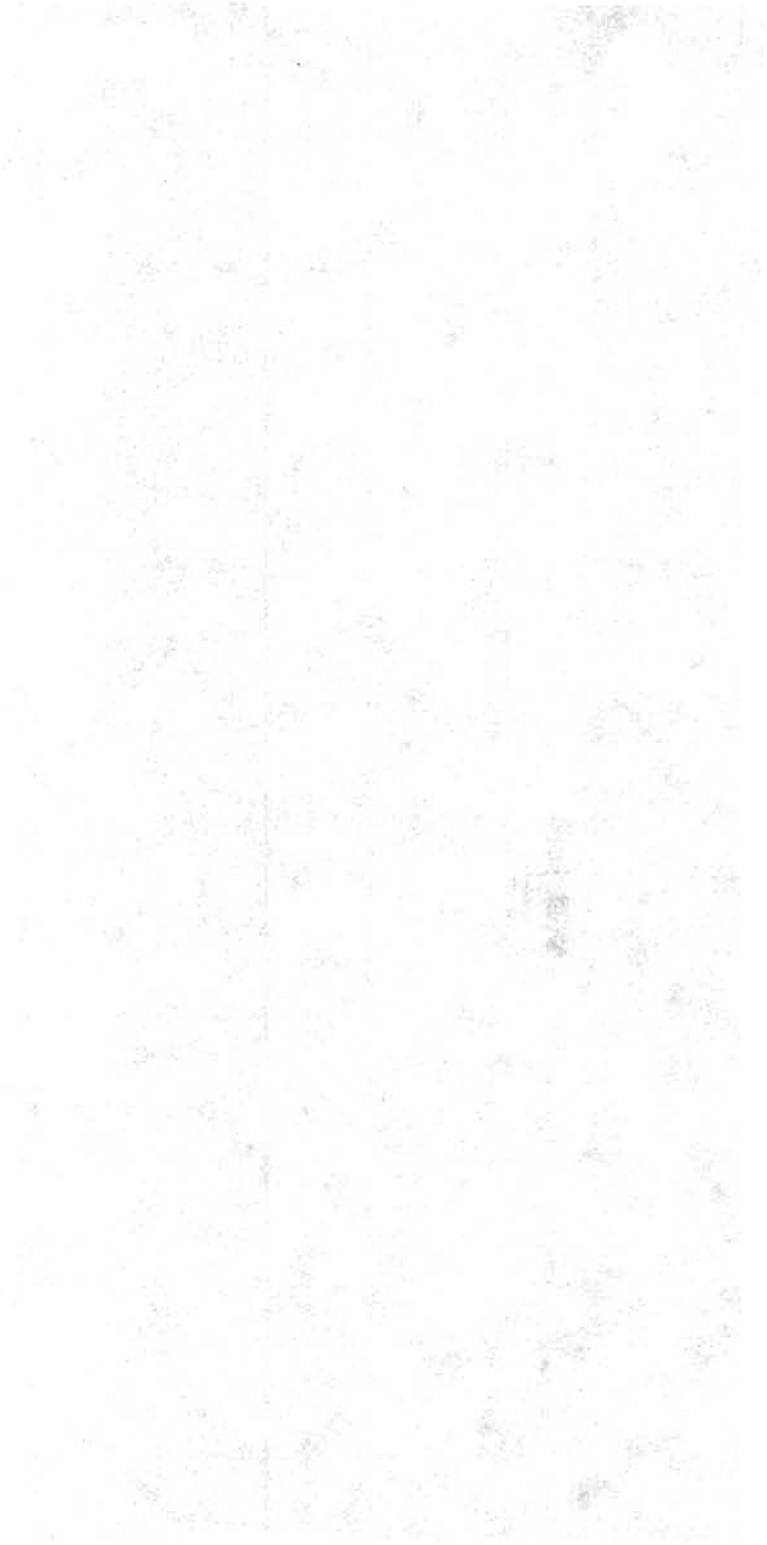

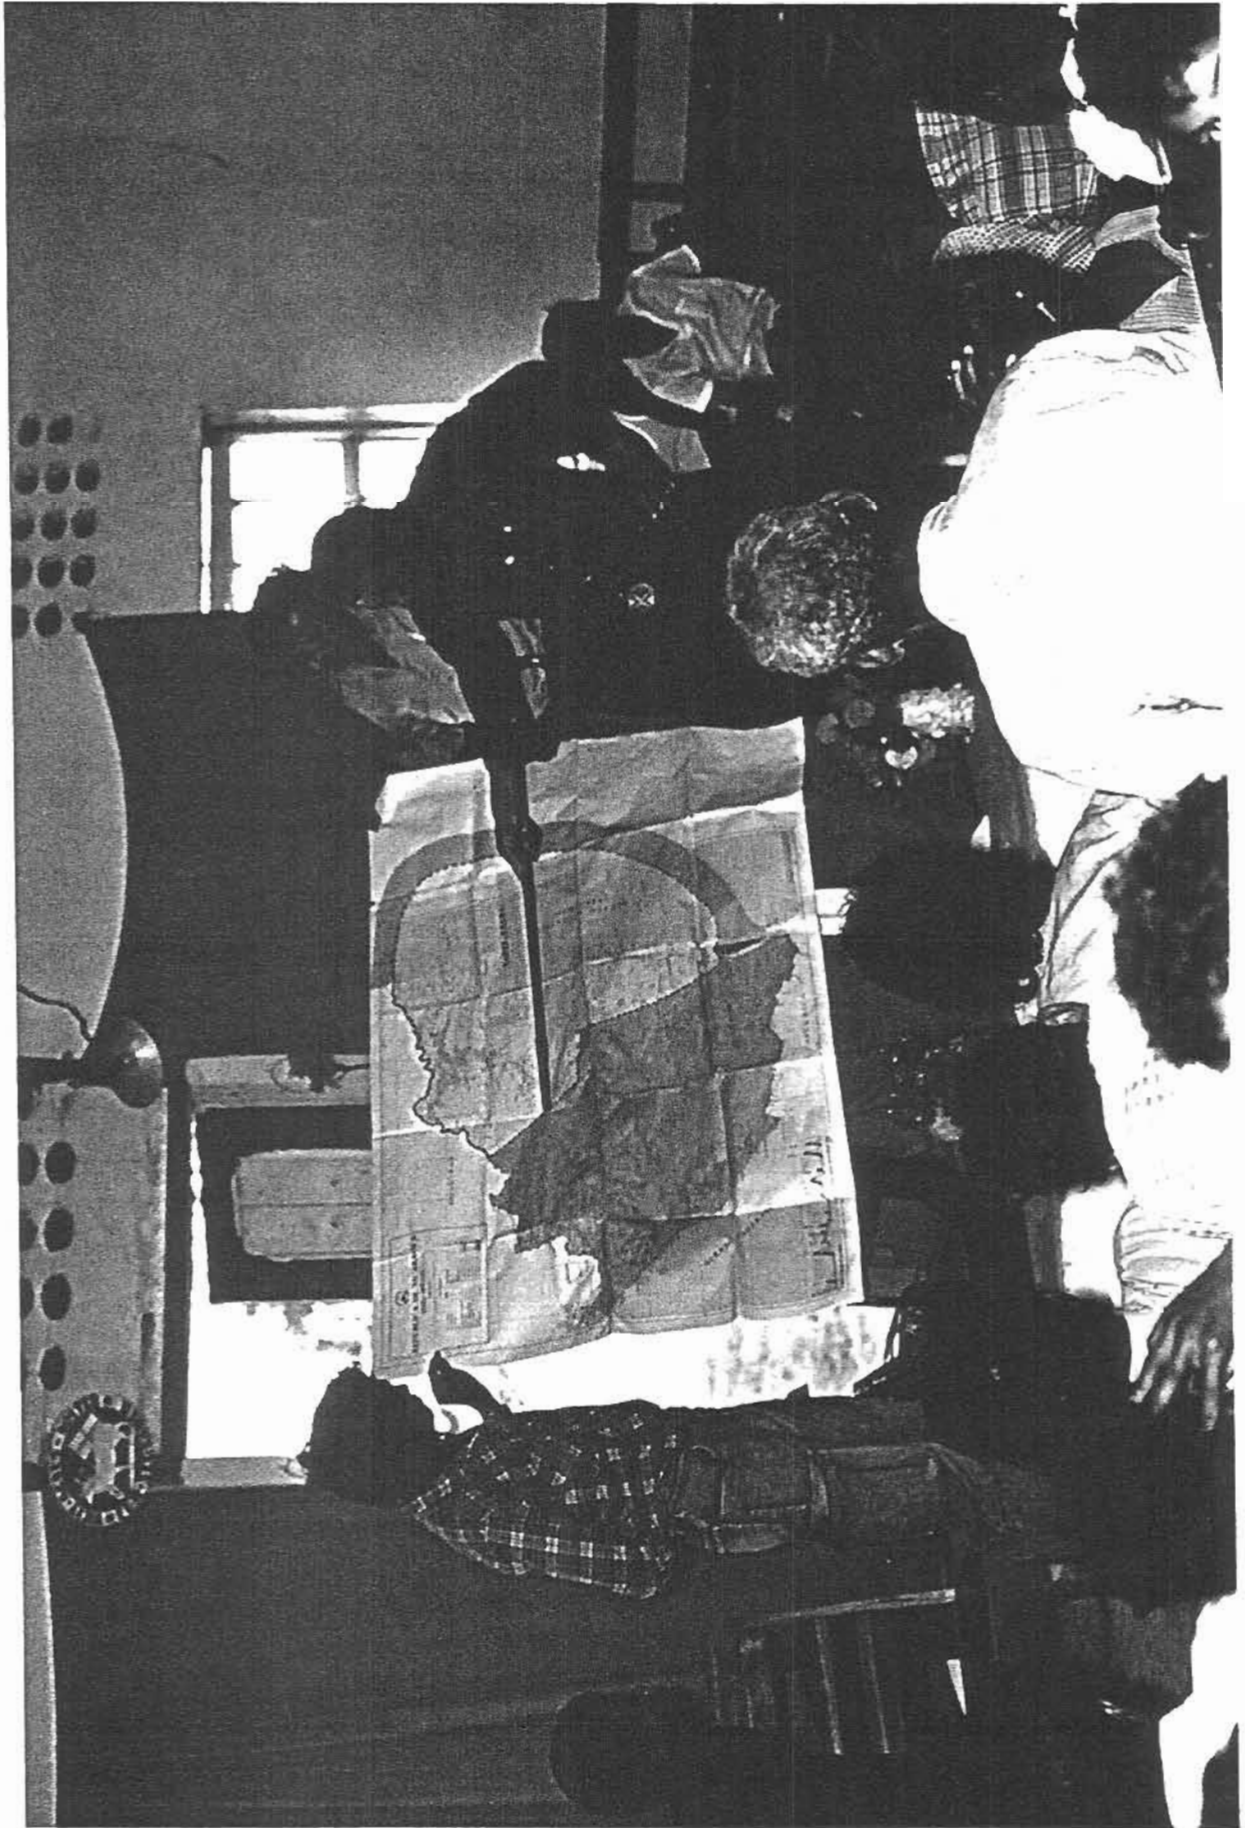

Sandinista psychopath "Melward", second-in-command of the DGSE unit based in Karawala, who beat, tortured, murdered and raped people in nearby communities. Melward was shot and seriously wounded by a Yatama fighter a day after this picture was taken. March 5, 1988, Little Sandy Bay. Photo by Bernard Nietschmann. [Chap. 12]

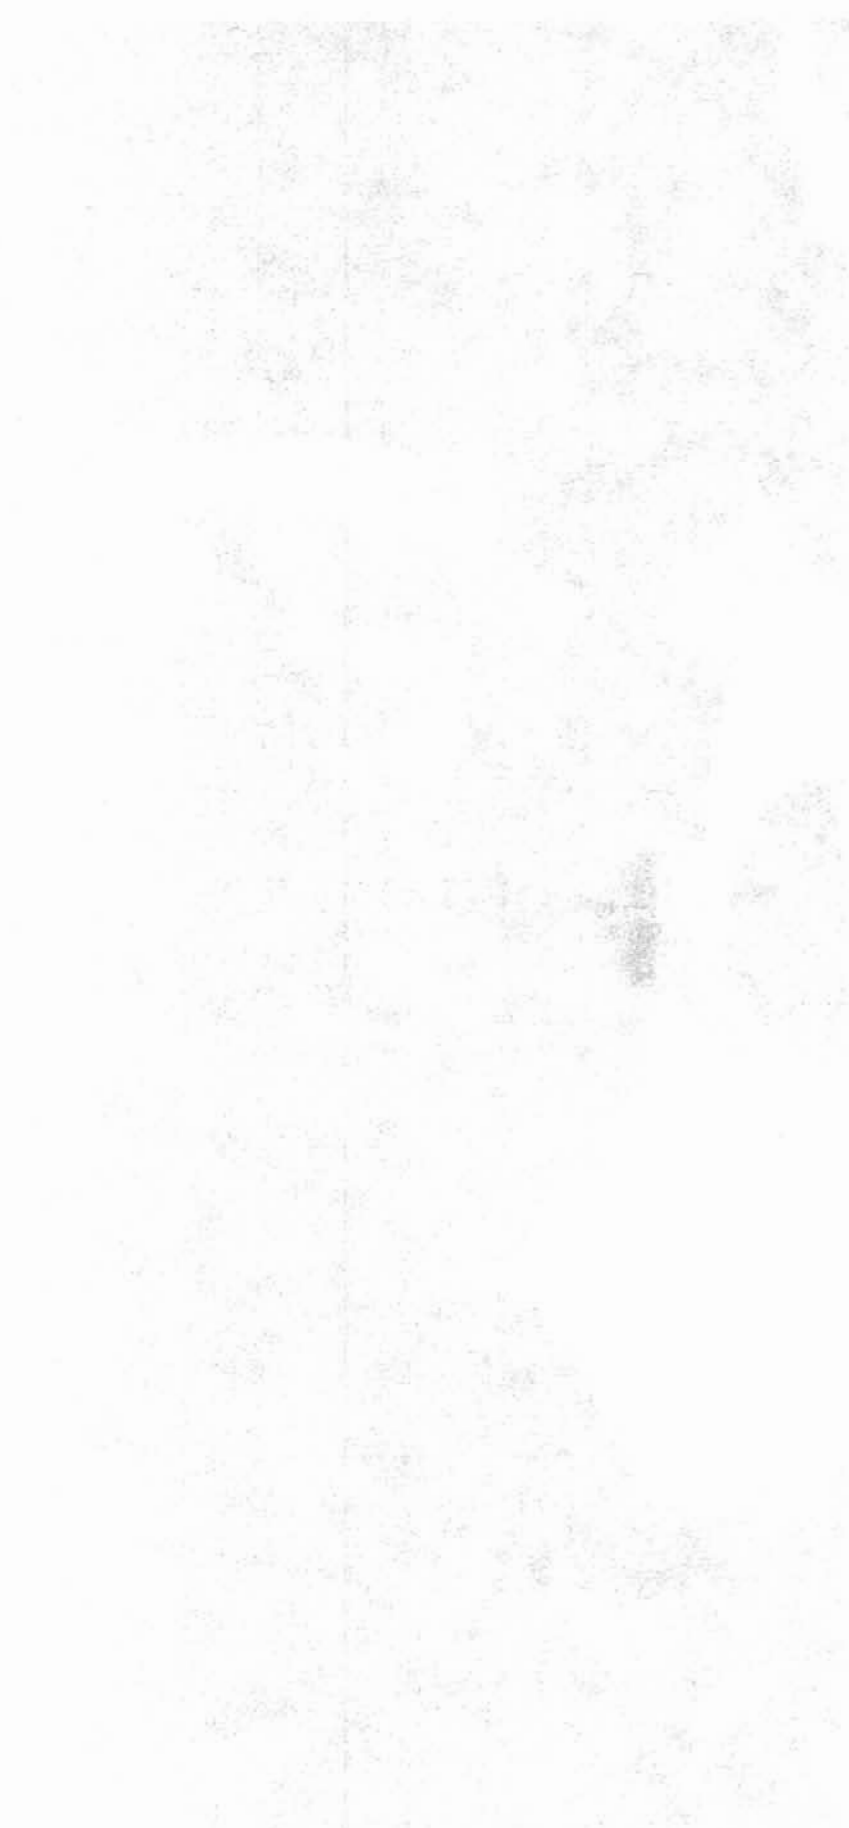

Brooklyn uses map of Yapti Tasba to illustrate Yatama's negotiation stance on territorial autonomy. Little Sandy Bay, March 5, 1988. Photo by Bernard Nietschmann. [Chap. 12]

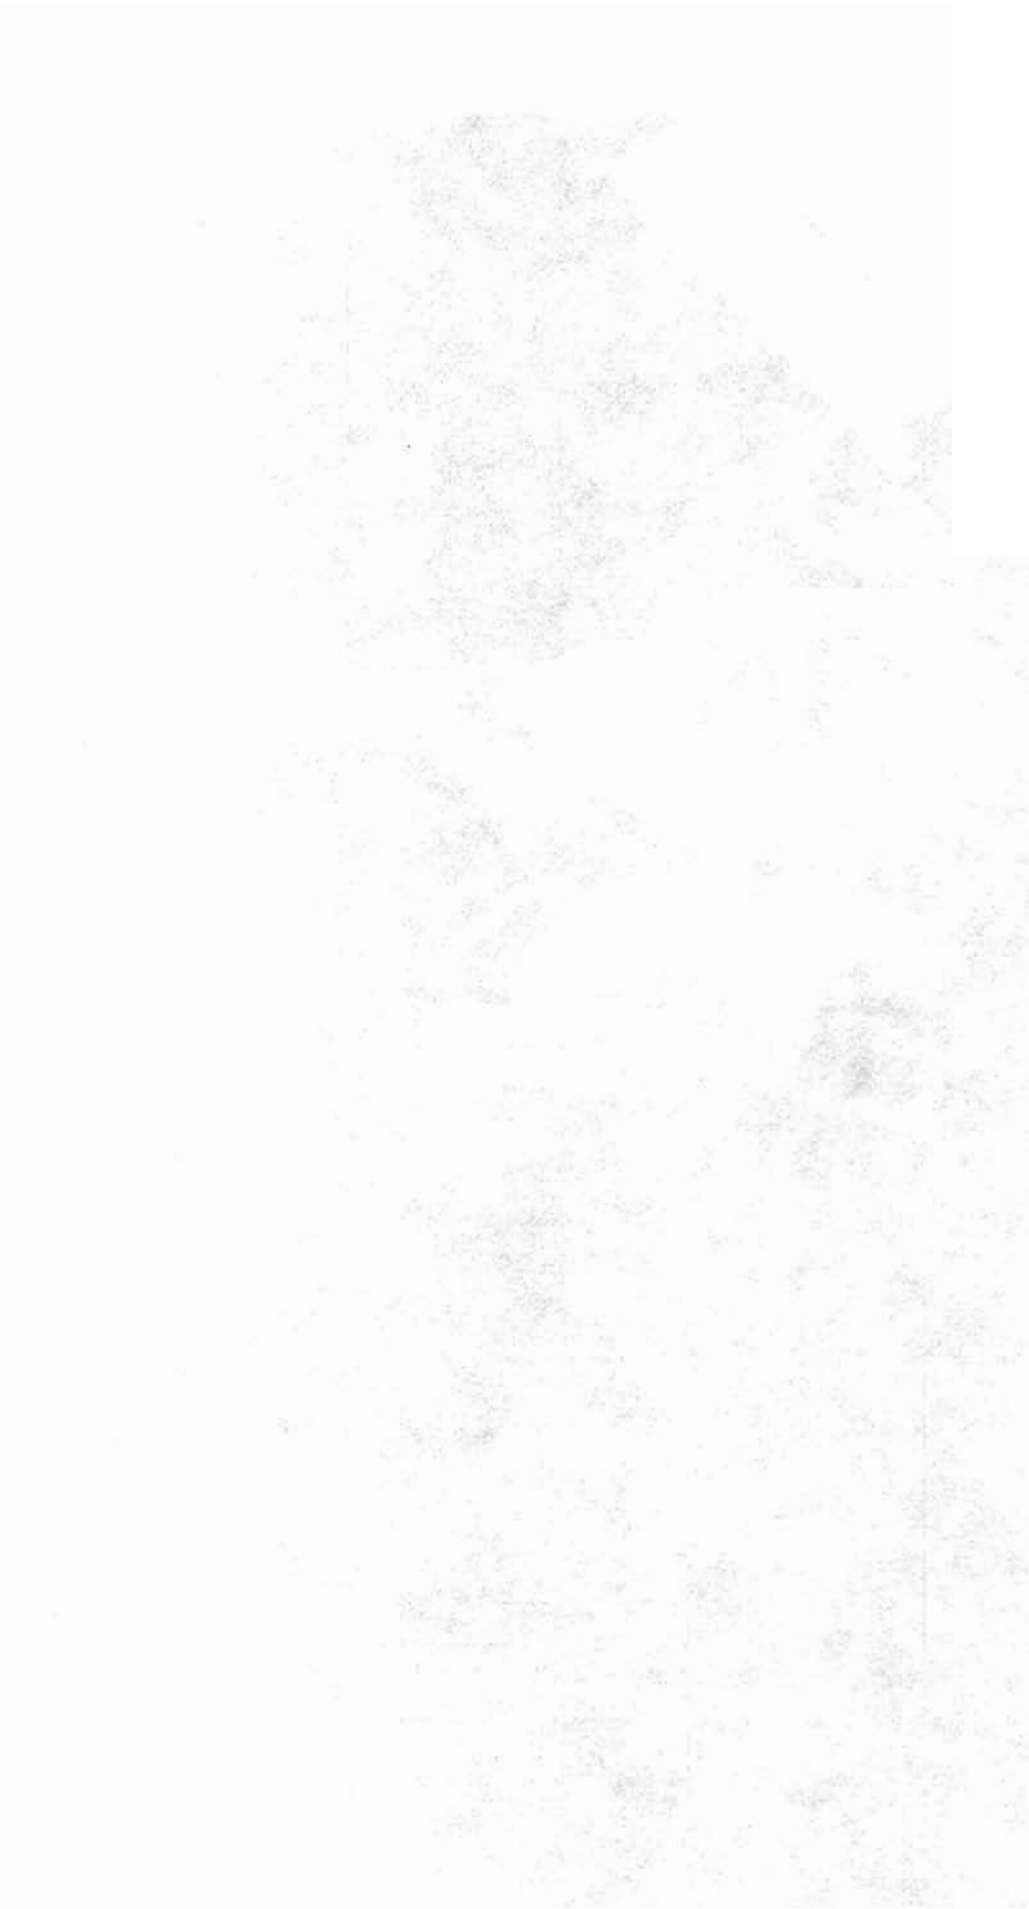

Brooklyn uses map of Yapti Tasba to illustrate Yatama's negotiation stance on territorial autonomy. Little Sandy Bay, March 5, 1988. Photo by Bernard Nietschmann. [Chap. 12]

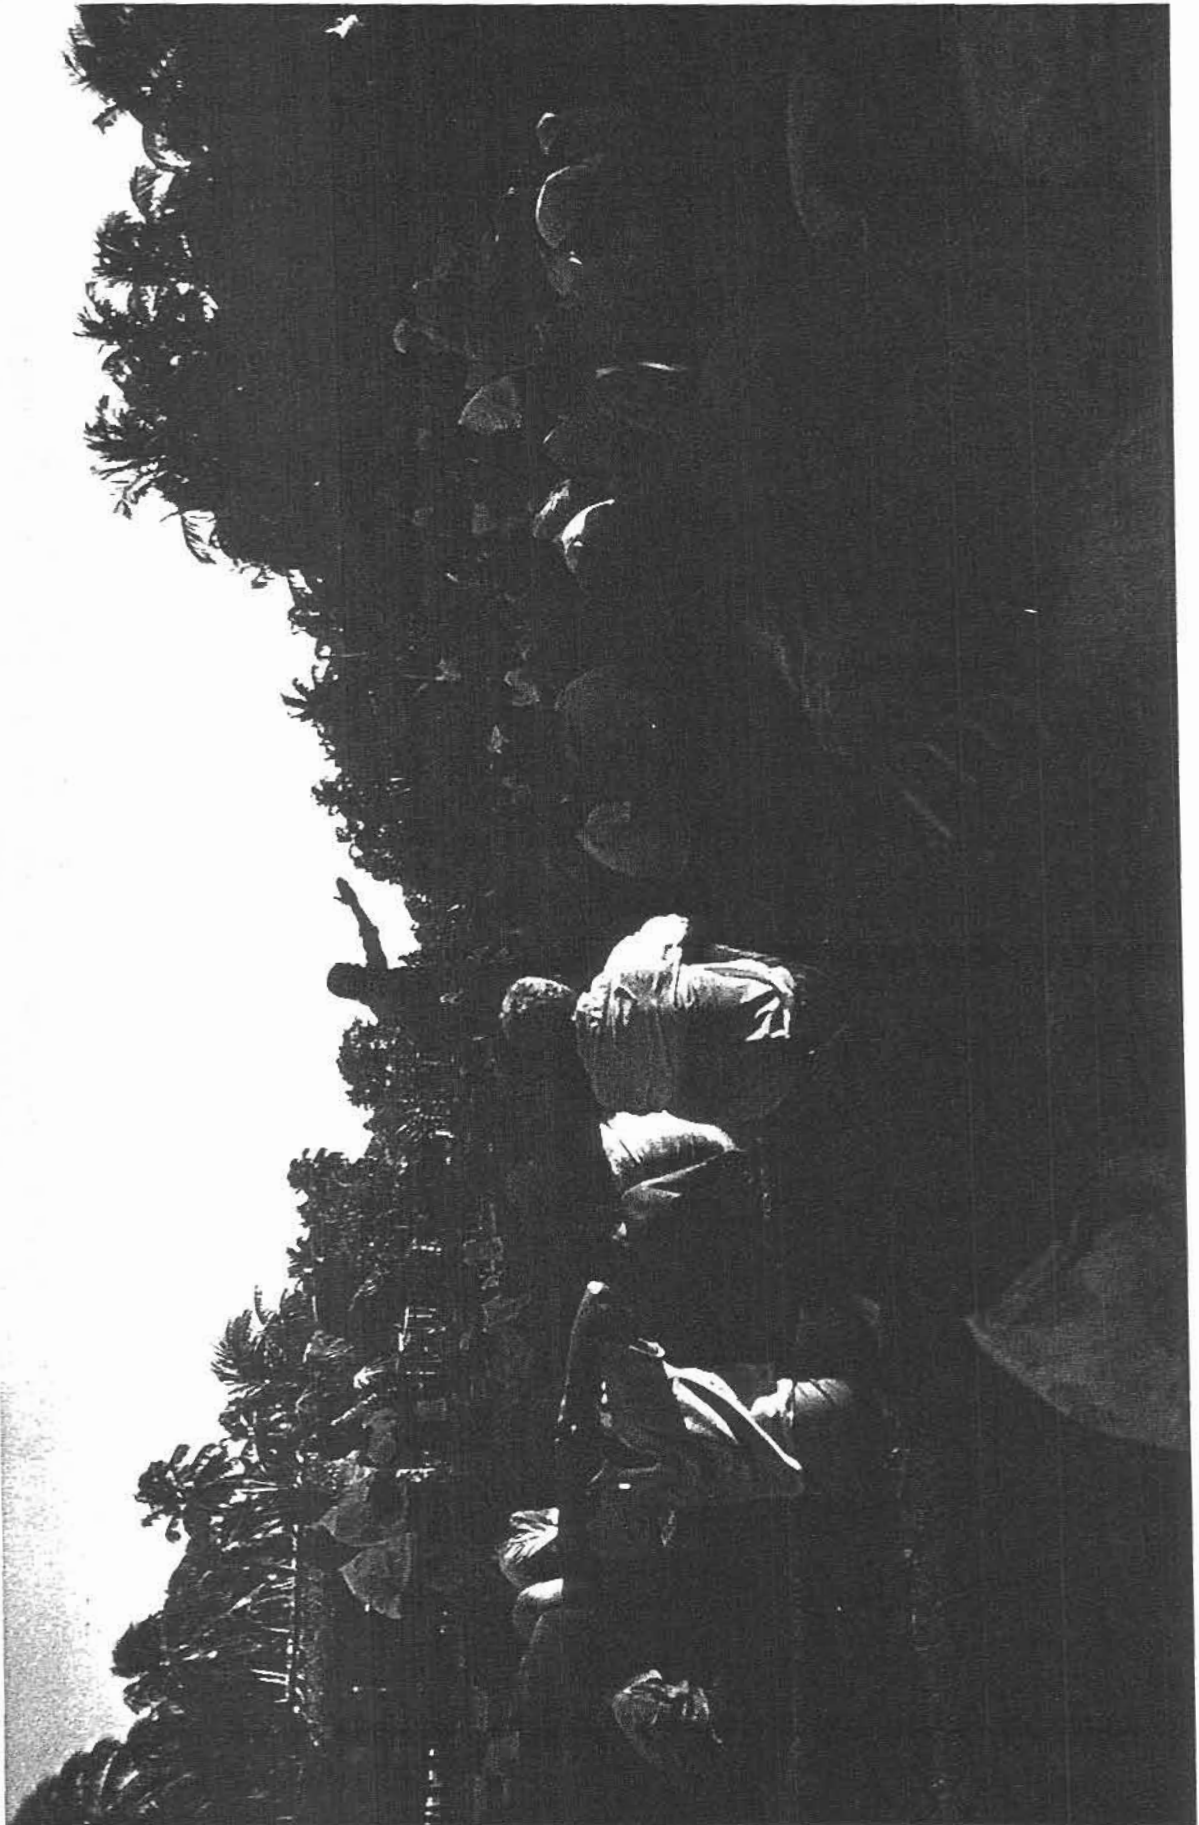

"Nietschmann goes with us." Brooklyn rejects DGSE demands to arrest the author. Moments later we left by river and sea for Haulover, Yatama stronghold. Left to right: DGSE officer, Yatama leader Samuel Mercado, DGSE officer, Brooklyn. Lamlaya, March, 1988. Photo by Bernard Nietschmann. [Chap. 12]

Brooklyn speaks about Yatama's negotiation position on territorial autonomy to the people of Haulover, site of some of the heaviest fighting in the Yapti Tasba war. March, 1988. Photo by Bernard Nietschmann. [Chap 12.]

